

INTERWETTEN* nominated for the 'Oscar of the gaming industry'

On 24th November 2010 the EGR Awards (eGaming Review Awards) – the Oscars of the gaming industry – will be announced in London. For this sixth award ceremony Interwetten is nominated among five competitors in the category "Skill Gaming Operator".

Ready to play? This slogan of Interwetten's new advertising campaign has already made an impact. Interwetten was founded in 1990 as a telephone sports betting provider. Over the years, Interwetten has continuously expanded its range of products, developing from a pure sports betting provider into one of the best online entertainment companies in Europe.

By receiving a nomination for an EGR Award in the category "Skill Gaming Operator", Interwetten has once again proven that it is among the real specialists in the field of online gaming. "We are delighted that our work in the gaming sector has been acknowledged. The awards are well respected and rightly regarded as the Oscars of the gaming industry. Therefore we are eagerly anticipating the ceremony," said Interwetten Product Development Manager Michael Bluemel.

An expert jury will announce the winners at a glamorous gala on 24th November in 'The Artillery Garden', one of London's biggest parks.

The nominees in the category "Skill Gaming Operator":

123 gaming, Interwetten, King com, Regent Markets Group, William Hill Online
