Sports SUV Skoda Kodiaq RS with Milotec tuning on Barracuda rims

The high-performance top models designed for sports applications traditionally bear the acronym RS at Skoda. Until recently, these variants – with the exception of the occasionally offered Fabia RS – were generally only available for the popular Octavia. This all changed in 2019, when the RS version of the largest Skoda, the Kodiaq, powered by a 240 hp twin-turbo diesel engine, came onto the market. With its refined appearance, it looks the part straight from the factory, but additional touch-ups are of course always worth considering. Take this specimen, for example, which looks even more dynamic thanks to customization by Milotec and a set of Barracuda Racing Wheels.

Milotec, based in Wiesbaden, is a renowned Skoda tuning specialist. They are currently working on a complete styling kit, which includes a front spoiler lip, door handle recesses and a set of wind deflectors for the side windows on the doors. The rear will also look even sportier thanks to a diffuser, rear spoiler and trunk handlebar. To round it all off, there will be a foot rest for the interior and a load sill guard as well as other small details.

The rims fitted by JMS Fahrzeugteile are the trendy Barracuda Tzunamee EVO wheels: They match the angular body of the Kodiaq beautifully with their asymmetrical Y-spoke design and dark gunmetal brushed finish and measure 9x20". Thanks to the 30 mm wheel spacers – which also come from Eibach along with the pro kit for lowering the chassis by 30 mm – the rims are perfectly aligned in the wheel cases. The fitted tires measure 265/35R20.
