SchwabensFolia meets Barracuda: 19-inch Dragoon on a digital print Mercedes

Tuned Mercedes C-Classes of the recently replaced 205 series? One often has the impression that these are almost always copies of the extremely popular top model AMG C 63. But of course this is deceptive, because of course there is another way. This is proven by this example of an S205 T-model. In addition to its eye-catching wrapping, it is characterized in particular by a set of high-quality wheels from Barracuda Racing Wheels.

The conversion of the Stuttgart station wagon was a joint project of the wrapping specialists from SchwabensFolia with Stuii Design, KW suspensions, RaceChip as well as JMS Fahrzeugteile and Barracuda Racing Wheels Europe. On the axles of the Mercedes there are Dragoon rims from the Ultralight Series by Barracuda with a "Hyper Silver" finish. The wheels, which are particularly light thanks to the FlowForged process, measure 8.5x19 inches at the front, while the 9x19 "deep concave" version is used at the rear. The mounted tires measure 225/40R19 and 255/35R19 and the additional lowering of the body by around 40 millimeters is thanks to a KW Variant 3 coilover kit.

The SchwabensFolia team was of course responsible for the aforementioned full wrap - it has an artistic styling with an Asian touch, which was designed by Stuii Design and implemented using digital printing. Last but not least, the T-model received an increase in performance by means of a chip tuning box from RaceChip.
